I. Institutional Overview

Seton Hall University is an academically distinguished co-educational Catholic university with a national reputation for educating a diverse student body through the liberal arts and sciences and select professional programs that are infused with the Catholic intellectual tradition. Founded in 1856 by Bishop James Bayley and named for his aunt, Saint Elizabeth Ann Seton, Seton Hall remains an archdiocesan university. As such, Seton Hall is not under the aegis of a religious order such as the Jesuits or Franciscans, but rather the Archdiocese of Newark. Bishop Bayley's vision was to create a home "for the mind, the heart, and the spirit."

In 1926, the Immaculate Conception Seminary moved from the main campus to a location in Mahwah, New Jersey, more than 30 miles away, and in 1950 Seton Hall College became Seton Hall University. The South Orange campus became co-educational in 1968, and the seminary moved back to South Orange in 1984.

The mission of the University states:

Seton Hall University is a major Catholic university. In a diverse and collaborative environment it focuses on academic and ethical development. Seton Hall students are prepared to be leaders in their professional and community lives in a global society and are challenged by outstanding faculty, an evolving technologically advanced setting and values-centered curricula. (As amended and approved June 1996).

Many priests reside on campus, serving as administrators, faculty, and staff as well as performing pastoral duties. The University By-Laws state that the Priest Community has "a special role in enhancing and safeguarding the Catholic mission of the University." In addition, the Minister to the Priest Community is elected by the members of the Priest Community and appointed to this office by the President of the University, with the approval of the Archbishop of Newark, who is also the Chair of the Board of Trustees and President of the Board of Regents. The Minister to the Priest Community is responsible for reporting on the Catholic Mission annually to both the Board of Trustees and the Board of Regents.

The main campus, located in South Orange, New Jersey, is 14 miles from New York City and easily accessible by train. The Law School is located in downtown Newark, while the College of Nursing and School of Health and Medical Sciences are in Nutley/Clifton, along with the Hackensack Meridian School of Medicine. Beyond these three main campuses, Seton Hall has approximately 25 additional locations for some of our specialized programs.

Academic Vision

Inspired by Saint Elizabeth Ann Seton's work educating people of all backgrounds and encompassing the full range of human experience, our University integrates liberal arts and sciences with professional programs at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Seton Hall is committed to supporting and strengthening quality scholarship, as well as learning and academic advancement. Several unique pathways exist for students to advance from the undergraduate level to our rigorous, nationally-ranked graduate and professional programs, which strengthen Seton Hall's academic reputation.

Seton Hall recognizes that our teacher-scholars form the heart of our institution. We pride ourselves on being a university with outstanding student-faculty engagement that affords all students the academic opportunities, challenges, and intellectual freedom that characterize exceptional programs. Seton Hall offers cross-disciplinary learning to foster adaptable, capable, skilled, and compassionate graduates. Our graduate programs continue to develop students' professional skills through research, advanced studies, and clinical training. By both practicing and promoting a Catholic understanding of social and economic justice, Seton Hall develops students into citizens who are committed to serving communities and who are armed with the skills and knowledge needed to meet the challenges and opportunities the twenty-first century offers.

Commitments

Five equally essential commitments form the foundation of our academic vision:

1. Breadth of education;
2. Pursuit, creation, and dissemination of knowledge;
3. Integration of the liberal arts and sciences with the Catholic intellectual tradition;
4. Faculty-student engagement; and
5. Preparation for an uncertain future.

Structure

Seton Hall is governed by the Board of Trustees and the Board of Regents. The dual board structure is designed to reflect the centrality of the Catholic mission to the University's success while at the same time recognizing the importance of shared governance structures. The members of the Board of Regents are elected by the Board of Trustees. The Board of Trustees is responsible for maintaining the essential character of the University as a Catholic institution of higher education and is the sole authority to authorize the sale or transfer of real property (land) belonging to Seton Hall. The Board of Regents appoints and employs the President, Provost, and other officers of the University; reviews University capital and operating budgets; establishes and grants degrees; establishes and prescribes, in consultation with the President, the principal functions of major academic divisions within the University; and grants tenure to faculty; among other duties. The Board of Trustees is chaired by the Archbishop of Newark, Cardinal Joseph W. Tobin. The Board of Regents is chaired by Kevin H. Marino and the President is Cardinal Tobin.

In 2019, Patrick Murray, then-Chair of the Board of Regents, announced that Dr. Joseph Nyre would be the twenty-first President in Seton Hall history, assuming the office on August 1, 2019. Dr. Nyre had served for the previous eight years as President of Iona College in New Rochelle, New York. Appendix A shows the organizational structure of the Office of the President.

In 2020, Dr. Nyre announced that Dr. Katia Passerini would be the Seton Hall University Provost and Executive Vice President, assuming the office on June 5, 2020. Dr. Passerini had previously served as the Dean of the Lesley H. and William L. Collins College of Professional Studies at St. John's University in Queens, NY.

Seton Hall University currently offers academic programs in nine schools and colleges and one continuing education division (both undergraduate and graduate programs unless indicated otherwise)—College of Arts and Sciences, W. Paul Stillman School of Business, College of Education and Human Services, College of Nursing, School of Diplomacy and International Relations, Immaculate Conception Seminary School of Theology, School of Health and Medical Sciences, College of Communication and the Arts, School of Law (graduate), and Continuing Education and Professional Studies (graduate and continuing education).

Under its new leadership, the University is implementing a new Strategic Plan, Harvest Our Treasures. The goals of the Strategic Plan can be found in Section II. "Institutional Priorities to be addressed in the Self-Study."

To realize the objectives of the Strategic Plan and new Academic Vision, Seton Hall established multiple University committees that are recommending and instituting changes to the University's culture, investments, and structure. In particular, the University Structure Committee (USC) was established to recommend changes to renew the University's organizational structure.

The recommendations from the USC imagine a new configuration of colleges intentionally designed to advance the Strategic Plan, fulfill the Academic Vision, prioritize the quality and distinction of academic programs, and respond proactively to patterns of change in higher education and society. The USC recommendations were approved by the Board of Regents in September 2021.

Student Profile

Seton Hall University enrolls nearly 10,000 combined undergraduate (6,068, up approximately 10% from the previous self-study) and graduate students (3,818, down approximately 11%, see Challenges below), hailing from 47 states and 48 countries. The University admitted more than 1600 undergraduates in Fall 2021, the most in its history; 33% of these students are eligible for PELL grants and 52% identify as students of color. More than 20% of the undergraduate population are first-generation college students, and a total of $149 million in financial aid and scholarships was provided to SHU students in the 2020-21 academic year.

The four, five, and six-year graduation rates have all steadily increased over the last decade, with the six-year rate increasing by six points from 66% to 72%, surpassing 70% for the first time. The one year retention rate has increased from 80.8% in Fall 2011 to 83.4% in Fall 2021. In addition, 71% of first-time students in Fall 2021 had a high school GPA above 3.5, up from 54% in 2014.

The growth in undergraduate enrollment can be attributed primarily to these factors:

- a combination of added recruitment tactics and strategies and outreach communication campaigns aimed at increasing the size of the incoming freshman class;
- a revamping of the financial aid leveraging model for incoming freshmen and;
- continued commitment to serving a diverse student body.

The student-faculty ratio is 14:1, and students have a broad range of opportunities in a variety of majors to conduct undergraduate research under the supervision of a faculty member. In addition, Seton Hall University students can avail themselves of 17,000 internship opportunities, with more than 80% of students completing internships and a graduate school acceptance rate of better than 90%. Seton Hall University is a member of the BIG EAST athletic conference and competes in 14 varsity sports. Approximately 280 student-athletes participate in these sports, earning a cumulative grade-point average of 3.498, with 58% of them qualifying for the Dean's List in Fall of 2021.

Challenges

Graduate enrollments at the University had been declining for roughly a decade before the leadership transition to the current President and Provost. However, through the Strategic Plan and its revitalized commitment to sustainability and improved academic quality, the University has made strategic choices to improve the academic quality, market distinction, and sustainability of its portfolio of graduate programs by revision of existing programs and by the creation of new programs. These choices have necessarily incurred some further recent declines in graduate enrollments because the University has suspended some programs while they were revised and closed others that no longer have a market or a clear role serving our Academic Vision or Mission. Furthermore, the University continues to revise its overall strategy to attract different market segments, with particular focus on international learners and corporate and academic partnerships, with new programs and improved recruitment tactics.

While COVID-19 and the severe drop in the college-age population occurring in the Northeast present their own set of challenges, the Seton Hall community responded in the fashion typical of the University's motto, "Hazard Zet Forward" ("Go forward in spite of hazards"). The enrollment of first-time students has increased steadily — 1459 in Fall of 2017, 1524 in 2018, 1630 in 2019, before dropping at the height of the COVID pandemic to 1334 in 2020. The total for Fall of 2021 was 1681, the largest number in University history. During Spring 2020, the University was forced to go to a remote instruction model for the remainder of the semester, and then pivoted to a Hy-Flex model for the academic year 2020-21, in which students split time between classroom presence and virtual presence to maintain proper spacing in classrooms. Faculty faced the challenges of adapting to these swift instructional changes and maintaining the high academic standards and student engagement levels for which Seton Hall is known.

II. Institutional Priorities to be Addressed in the Self-Study

The Institutional Priorities for Seton Hall University's Middle States Commission on Higher Education Self-Study were identified through a comprehensive and inclusive strategic planning process that began in the Summer of 2019 and ended in December of 2020, when the Board of Regents unanimously approved our current Strategic Plan, Harvest Our Treasures. An Implementation Steering Committee (ISC) co-chaired by our Provost and Executive Vice President, Katia Passerini, Ph.D., and our Vice President for Board Affairs and University Strategy, Michele Nelson, Ph.D., oversaw the development of an Implementation Plan that we now use as an integrated management tool to ensure and assess progress toward each Strategic Plan Goal, objective by objective, on a regular and continual basis.

As this section further explains, our Institutional Priorities are therefore current, collectively generated, and fully aligned with our Mission, Academic Vision, and strategic goals; aligned with the MSCHE Standards for Accreditation; and systematically integrated with our regular decision-making processes and ongoing assessment.

Strategic Planning Process

Seton Hall University employed Keeling & Associates (K&A) to guide its strategic planning process. K&A attended a Board of Regents retreat in September 2019 to facilitate discussion of the University's Catholic identity, described above in the "Institutional Overview," and the strategic planning process. The University then convened a Strategic Planning Committee (SPC), co-chaired by Andrew Simon, Ph.D., Psy.D., Professor of Psychology and at the time Vice-Chair of the Faculty Senate, and Alyssa McCloud, Ph.D., Senior Vice President for Enrollment Management. The SPC coordinated the strategic planning process from October 2019 through April 2020.

From October to December 2019, K&A and the SPC engaged all segments of Seton Hall stakeholders through multiple modalities to gather their thoughts about the challenges, opportunities, and priorities for Seton Hall as well as their sense of the fundamental identity and Mission of the University. The consultants and co-chairs of the SPC consistently asked stakeholders to connect their ideas to the University Mission. This work included several days of in-person conversations between K&A consultants and small groups of Seton Hall faculty, administration, students, staff, alumni, and the priest community. Such groups included the Student Government Association and its leadership, the Faculty Senate and its Executive Committee, Chairs of the other Faculty Senate Committees, Department Chairs, Deans, the Provost's Office, the priest community, alumni groups, Student Services, Admissions, and representative groups from all divisions. Meetings with these small groups were supplemented by several "town hall" meetings open to the entire University community, by a physical "idea board" in the University Center, and by an anonymous, open, electronic survey.

The information gathering process immediately revealed the need to compose together a clear Academic Vision that specified what kind of institution we aspire to be and for what purpose/s. To that end, the University assembled a group of faculty to draft an Academic Vision. The faculty in this group included representatives from all academic areas of the University, including libraries, the core curriculum, the Faculty Senate, graduate and undergraduate programs, professional and pre-professional programs, all three campuses, and of course the humanities, social sciences, and physical sciences. The draft Academic Vision they produced in January 2020 went to the Office of the Provost and the Deans and then to the Strategic Planning Committee, Executive Cabinet, and eventually the Board of Regents for approval. The approved Academic Vision, included above in our "Institutional Overview," was therefore produced organically and in turn guided the completion of our strategic planning process.

Strategic Plan Goals/Institutional Priorities for the Self-Study

The University's Middle States leadership team selected the strategic plan goals as our institutional priorities because of the inclusive and comprehensive process by which they were formulated. Since they outline a vision for Seton Hall University, these goals provide guideposts for the University's future.

The Seton Hall University Strategic Plan aims to fulfill the University's Mission and Academic Vision by systematically advancing the following five Goals, each of which aligns with several Standards for Accreditation and for each of which we have (i) a dedicated and empowered coordinating committee and (ii) a collectively authored schedule of specific action items to accomplish.

Over the course of Spring 2020, the SPC worked with the draft Academic Vision and all the input from University stakeholder meetings, the idea board, and the surveys to distill a set of five Strategic Goals and related objectives that articulated the Institution's shared aspirations, needs, and purpose. To solidify and articulate the connection between the five plan Goals and the University Mission, the SPC identified five "Guiding Principles" that informed University thinking throughout the process. The SPC presented the draft Academic Vision Statement and these Goals to the Board of Regents at its annual retreat in September 2020. The Regents supported the direction of the plan.

From September 2020 to November 2020, the ISC began work overseeing the elaboration of explicit action items and measurable deliverables to advance each Goal and its objectives. Over 110 members of the University, mostly faculty members, participated in implementation subcommittees prescribing the work to be done to achieve the five Strategic Plan Goals. Each Goal is led by co-chairs from different units. These co-chairs serve on the ISC and coordinate the work of many subcommittees devoted to each cluster of related action items. The Board of Regents unanimously endorsed the complete Strategic Plan and its Implementation Schedule on December 4, 2020. The three-year plan launched January 2021 and will last through December 2023.

Goal 1 is to "provide a distinctive and rigorous education in the liberal arts tradition that also informs curated professional and graduate programs and provides all students the education to become adaptable, imaginative, resilient, ethical and successful individuals." Consistent with our Academic Vision, Goal 1 reinforces our teaching of the Catholic intellectual tradition and a broad liberal arts and sciences curriculum and calls on us to cultivate 21st-century skills (critical thinking, creativity, empathy, digital and information literacies, verbal, and platform skills) in addition to disciplinary or professional expertise. Goal 1 emphasizes the need to invest in faculty and new programs, but especially in cross-disciplinary programs, teaching, and research. Relatedly, Goal 1 calls for us to promote experiential learning to advance principles of Catholic social justice and servant leadership, on the one hand, and career-readiness and applied learning, on the other.

Goal 1 therefore aligns with Accreditation Standards 1 (Mission & Goals), 3 (Design and Delivery of Student Experience), and 5 (Educational Effectiveness).

Goal 2 calls for us to “support faculty in strengthening academic quality, advancing research and scholarship, and enhancing interdisciplinarity, equity, and inclusion.” Also consistent with the Academic Vision, such support involves efforts to improve the recruitment, retention, and compensation of faculty; efforts to diversify and increase the academic distinction of the faculty; and efforts to improve infrastructure for promoting grants and research. Goal 2 also underscores the importance of academic freedom, inside and outside the classroom, and of student research.

Goal 2 therefore aligns most closely with Accreditation Standards 1, 2 (Ethics and Integrity), 3, 5, and 6 (Planning and Resources).

Goal 3 asks us to “create a premier student experience that is equitable and consistent, enhances student support and retention, and prepares students to be impactful global citizens.” It promotes a comprehensive affordability agenda for students; a reimagined, comprehensive team advising system; the expansion of experiential learning opportunities; enhancements to technology and facilities to promote learning; and support services and programming for graduate students.

Goal 3 therefore aligns most closely with Accreditation Standards 1, 2, 3, 4 (Support of the Student Experience), and 6.

Goal 4 is to “further cultivate and nurture a trusting and collaborative Seton Hall community that educates and empowers all its members to advance equity, inclusion, and social justice on campus and in the wider world.” Promoting diversity, equity, inclusion, and social justice on- and off- campus through changes to University curricula, policies, training, culture, and programming are the focus of this Goal. But Goal 4 also aims to increase and improve transparency, communication, and collegiality across campus with cross-divisional partnerships, teamwork, and messaging. We aspire to operate together as “One University.”

Goal 4 therefore aligns most closely with Accreditation Standards 1, 2, 4, and 7 (Governance, Leadership and Administration).

Finally, Goal 5 is to “advance institutional sustainability by creating a nimble, responsive, and innovative operational infrastructure and make strategic investments in people, programs, and partnerships to ensure that Seton Hall can achieve its mission for current and future generations of students.” Goal 5 requires us to explore strategic partnerships; enhance employee compensation, recruitment, and development efforts; and establish mechanisms that enable the University to be nimble, flexible, expedient, innovative, and proactive.

Goal 5 therefore aligns most closely with Accreditation Standards 1, 2, 6, and 7.

A summary of this alignment is included below in Table 1:

The preliminary alignment of Strategic Plan goals (institutional priorities) to specific standards and requirements of affiliation are contained in Table 1.

III. Intended Outcomes of the Self-Study

The University has identified the following desired outcomes of the self-study process:

We will demonstrate that Seton Hall University meets or exceeds the Middle States Commission on Higher Education (MSCHE) accreditation standards and requirements of affiliation through a self-study process grounded in evidence and marked by thoughtful and thorough analysis.

We will engage the University community in a self-evaluation process that is transparent and inclusive, with broad representation from the University community, and offer all stakeholders opportunities for impactful involvement and feedback.

We will focus on continuous improvement in the attainment of the institution's mission and its institutional priorities as outlined above, with particular attention on improving the academic profile of the University as demonstrated in faculty productivity, student completion and retention, and administrative efficiency and transparency.

We will use the self-study process to lay the groundwork for the next Strategic Plan including improved processes and updated goals (with preliminary work to begin in 2024).

IV. Self-Study Approach

The University selected the standards-based approach for this self-study. This approach was chosen to facilitate a campus-wide review of institutional performance within the seven standards of accreditation and an appraisal of our accomplishment of our Strategic Plan goals/institutional priorities. Further, the standards-based approach was chosen as a means of informing the University about the next set of Strategic Plan goals.

V. Organizational Structure of the Steering Committee and Working Groups

Leadership Team and Steering Committee

The Co-chairs for the Seton Hall University Middle States Self-Study and Steering Committee are Leigh Onimus (Associate Dean of the School of Business), and Dr. John T. Saccoman (Professor and Chair of the Department of Mathematics and Computer Science in the College of Arts and Sciences). The President and Provost vetted and approved them for these positions. They are joined on the Steering Committee and are assisted in the day-to-day management of the self-study process by the Accreditation Liaison Officer (ALO), Concetta Beale (Director of Institutional Research), and Dr. Peter Shoemaker (Associate Provost). These four comprise the Leadership Team. At various points in the initial identification of persons suited for leadership positions, we consulted the Implementation Steering Committee, a standing committee for assessing and coordinating the implementation of the Strategic Plan.

The Leadership Team is joined on the Steering Committee by eleven others who represent various constituencies across the three campuses of Seton Hall. Steering Committee members were identified by the Leadership Team and were invited after consultation with the Provost and the person's respective dean or supervisor. Special considerations were: long-term institutional knowledge, respect across campus for a commitment to service, and previous Middle States experience; however, some newer members of the SHU community were chosen to provide a fresh perspective. The Steering Committee is charged with assisting and facilitating all phases of the self-study process, from working group composition to self-study design creation. The Steering Committee membership is included in Table 2.

Steering Committee members have familiarized themselves with the seven Standards for Accreditation and the fifteen Requirements of Affiliation as well as the five institutional priorities/strategic plan goals that will be the focus of the self-study.

The members of the Steering Committee have been assigned to be especially conversant in one Standard of Accreditation. The assigned Steering Committee members will have several functions: 1) provide feedback on each phase of the chapter of its respective working group; 2) assist with suggesting and aligning evidence; 3) work with self-study Co-chairs to finalize each chapter.

Other duties of the Steering Committee include the following:

- Coordinate and facilitate communication between Working Groups, as needed;

Working Groups

The Working Groups Co-chairs were selected in a collaborative process that included the Leadership Team, the Provost and President, and the immediate supervisor or dean for each. After they were seated, the Working Groups Chairs formed their committees in consultation with the Leadership Group, who solicited recommendations from many facets of the campus, including the Steering Committee, Faculty Senate, administration, and staff.

In addition to the seven Working Groups, there are two additional committees with specific self-study duties. The Compliance Committee will prepare the Institutional Federal Compliance Report, address the requirements of affiliation that do not fit in with standards, and manage the flow of documents for the entire self-study. The Communications Committee will manage all aspects of communication regarding the self-study process, both internal and external, and including the management of the web page. It is anticipated that, on average, the Leadership Group will meet at least once per week, the Steering Committee will meet at least once per month, and the Working Groups, Compliance Committee, and Communications Committee will meet at least bi-weekly. Because Seton Hall University has adopted a standards-based approach to the self-study, each Working Group is expected to produce a chapter containing an evidence-based treatment of the criteria outlined in each standard with consideration for the institutional goals. In some cases, these chapters also will address Requirements of Affiliation.

Among the specific charges for the Working Groups are the following:

- Understand the Commission’s recommendations in response to the prior Self-Study and the 2016 Monitoring Report.
- Assess Seton Hall’s strengths and weaknesses with respect to the group’s standard in the context of the relevant institutional priorities.
- Document and distill the findings into a single, narrative report to the Steering Committee observing the instructions described in “Working Groups Reports: Style & Format,” found in the next section of this document.
- Identify the most significant opportunities for improvement that will be included in the final Self-Study Report.

Communication within Working Groups will occur via in-person meetings, meetings in Microsoft Teams, and sharing of documents using the file sharing system provided by SharePoint. In addition, a SharePoint site, managed by the Communication and Compliance Committees, will house the documentary evidence for all Working Groups and be accessible by the Working Group Chairs and Steering Committee.

VI. Guidelines for Reporting

Each Working Group is tasked with conducting the research for and drafting a chapter of the final Self-Study Report focused on the respective Standard for Accreditation and Requirements of Affiliation, with close attention to how these align with our institutional priorities.

Appendix B provides a sample of each Working Group’s lines of inquiry, evidence, and alignment to our institutional priorities and Requirements of Affiliation.

The following timetable calls for initial lines of inquiry, a gap analysis, and several drafts with revised submissions in between. At each stage, designated members of the Steering Committee and Co-Chairs of the Self-Study will review and make recommendations for revisions or additions.

Preliminary lines of inquiry and initial identification of evidence	February 15, 2022
Draft of narrative for 50% lines of inquiry	October 1, 2022
Gap analysis	November 1, 2022
Draft of narrative for remaining 50% lines of inquiry	February 1, 2023
Full draft chapters, addressing all lines of inquiry and edits	June 1, 2023
Final chapter deadline	October 1, 2023

The Leadership Team and Steering Committee will coordinate and summarize the opportunities for improvement identified by the respective working groups.

To standardize final work products and allow the Communication Committee to focus on substantive editing and the aesthetics of the final report, a set of standards has been established and will be shared with the co-chairs of the Working Groups.

In composing chapters of the Self-Study Report, all Working Groups should confirm to the guidelines below.

Formatting Guidelines

- Write in active voice and use third person instead of second person.
- Use the MS Word default format for bulleted or numbered lists.
- Refer to positions or titles, rather than individuals’ names.
- Use APA format for all citations.
- Avoid excessive use of jargon.
- Do not use contractions.
- When listing names, order them alphabetically
- When creating a bulleted list, do not use punctuation when providing a simple list
- Spell out 0-9 but use numerals for 10 and over

- When using acronyms, introduce the acronym in parentheses after the first use of the full term in each section of the document. List the Acronym in an end-of-chapter appendix.
- For University documents such as Harvest Our Treasures or Seeds of Innovation italicize without quotations

Capitalization

Please note that some capitalization items differ from traditional University style.

- Use School or College instead of college or school when referring to a specific Seton Hall entity.
- Use capital letters when referring to the different titles at Seton Hall (e.g., Vice-President).

VII. Organization of the Final Self-Study Report

As outlined above, the co-chairs of the seven Working Groups will research, draft and edit their respective chapters of the final Self-Study Report, in consultation with the Compliance Committee, which is managing the Evidence Inventory. The Self-Study Co-Chairs, working with the Steering Committee, will be responsible for compiling the final Self-Study Report to be submitted to MSCHE. VII. Strategy for Verification of Compliance with Applicable Federal Regulatory Requirements

A separate committee, the Compliance Committee, has been established to lead the University through the verification of compliance process and to prepare the Institutional Federal Compliance Report. Seton Hall will use the Institutional Federal Compliance Report, with supporting evidence to demonstrate the institution's compliance. All evidence will be included in the Evidence Inventory.

Table 1 above summarizes the respective Working Groups responsible for each Requirement of Affiliation in consultation with the Compliance Committee. The Requirements of Affiliation not addressed by the Working Groups will be addressed by the Compliance Committee.

As seen below through the titles of the members of the Compliance Committee, thoughtful consideration was given to bring in areas of expertise pertinent to the Compliance Report.

XII. Evidence Inventory Strategy

The Communication and Compliance Committees have shared responsibility for the Evidence Inventory. Each of these committees has members with specific areas of expertise that will support the work needed. The Compliance Committee is Chaired by a Librarian whose expertise in data and document management and research support are essential. The Communication Committee includes several individuals with technical expertise as well as project management expertise. These individuals will collaborate to develop the technology structure within Share Point needed to organize and properly align evidence to the respective standards and sections of the Self-Study. A Graduate Assistant who supports the Co-Chairs of the Self-Study will also be dedicated partially to gathering and organizing evidence. A naming convention will be established as part of this process.

The Evidence Inventory will be maintained in a SharePoint site and will include resources for all Working Groups. Items will be added, updated, or removed as the Self-Study progresses. A curated collection of the most appropriate evidence will be uploaded by standard to the Middle States portal, along with the final Self-Study Report in early 2024.
